Friday, August 20, 2004, the entire Allen County Public Library System will be closed for a staff in-service. Please make a note of this on your calendar as we would hate for you to make a genealogical research trip to Fort Wayne only to find our facilities closed. We will be open Monday through Thursday of that week from 9A to 9P (regular hours) and again on Saturday, August 21, 2004 from 9A to 6P. Repeating, we will be closed on Friday, August 20, 2004.

If you're like me, the end of July is a strong indicator that summer is waning. Though there are certainly a number of summer days left, most of us have taken the bulk of our summer vacations. The back-to-school ads are invading our newspapers. Many of us have been to a family reunion or, if we're lucky, two. A few of us may have even gotten to research in a courthouse or archive that long had been on our list of places we most wanted to visit. I hope the summer days that have passed have provided you with some genealogical successes, and that the remaining warm days ahead give hope for a few more discoveries.

With a little more than one half of 2004 in the books, I want to take this opportunity to remind you of a long-standing service of the Allen County Public Library. For many decades, individuals who have not had a

If you're like me, the end of July is a strong indicator that summer is waning. Though there are certainly a number of summer days left, most of us have taken the bulk of our summer vacations. The back-to-school ads are invading our newspapers. Many of us have been to a family reunion or, if we're lucky, two. A few of us may have even gotten to research in a courthouse or archive that long had been on our list of places we most wanted to visit. I hope the summer days that have passed have provided you with some genealogical successes, and that the remaining warm days ahead give hope for a few more discoveries.

With a little more than one half of 2004 in the books, I want to take this opportunity to remind you of a long-standing service of the Allen County Public Library. For many decades, individuals who have not had a desire to officially publish their genealogical work have sent an unbound "master copy" to the Historical Genealogy Department. In exchange for the privilege of allowing us to make one photocopy for our collection, we provide the compiler of the work with one complementary, bound photocopy for his or her collection in addition to returning the original master.

It is a great way to make sure your work is preserved and available for future generations of researchers. In addition, having a copy at our library ensures your work is secure from any disaster that might, heaven forbid, befall your personal library. What to do with the extra copy? How about a "draft" book to pass around at the next family reunion for others to comment upon and update? Or a little surprise gift for the relative or family friend who really helped you out?

If you are interested in taking advantage of this service, just mail your unbound "master copy" to Steve Myers, Assistant Manager, Historical Genealogy Department, P. O. Box 2270, Fort Wayne, IN 46801-2270. Include a note that simply reads, "Photocopy Exchange Program." You'll be glad you did--and we will certainly be glad you did!

A final note: If you have Allen County, Indiana roots, be sure to continually check the "Friends of Allen County" website at <www.FriendsOfAllenCounty.org>. There is always something new happening there! Just this month we added a searchable index to Fort Wayne and Allen County, Indiana obituaries from 1900 through May 2004. Along with more than one century's worth of obituaries, a searchable surname file and a list of the department's periodical titles are two more new data files. And there will be a number of exciting searchable indices added in August.

Nonpopulation Census Schedules
Timothy Dougherty

The Genealogy Department recently acquired Nonpopulation Census Schedules for select states. These schedules include information compiled in addition to the regular census at the time of census taking. They cover 1850 through 1880 and include Agricultural, Manufacturing and Mortality Schedules, Social Statistics, and Defective, Dependent and Delinquent classes. An examination of these schedules may help paint a more complete picture of an ancestor's life and community.

Agricultural Schedules list statistical information regarding the inhabitant's farm. They help establish a clearer understanding of an ancestor's role in the community. These schedules name the farmer, show the amount of acreage, cash values, and breakdown of labor, livestock, produce and products. Farms of less than 100 dollars in produce value were excluded. As with the Population Schedules, information becomes more detailed with the taking of each new census.

Nonpopulation Census Schedules

The Genealogy Department recently acquired Nonpopulation Census Schedules for select states. These schedules include information compiled in addition to the regular census at the time of census taking. They cover 1850 through 1880 and include Agricultural, Manufacturing and Mortality Schedules, Social Statistics, and Defective, Dependent and Delinquent classes. An examination of these schedules may help paint a more complete picture of an ancestor's life and community.

Agricultural Schedules list statistical information regarding the inhabitant's farm. They help establish a clearer understanding of an ancestor's role in the community. These schedules name the farmer, show the amount of acreage, cash values, and breakdown of labor, livestock, produce and products. Farms of less than 100 dollars in produce value were excluded. As with the Population Schedules, information becomes more detailed with the taking of each new census.

Manufacturing Schedules contain information on people engaged in the following industries: agricultural implements, paper mills, boots and shoes, leather and tanning, flourmills and gristmills, dairy, slaughtering, salt, lumber mills and sawmills, brickyards and tile works, coal mines, and quarries. They record details concerning materials used, costs of labor, and capital invested and made. A person appearing on the Agricultural Census may also appear on the Manufacturing Census. For example, an ancestor may have been both a farmer and saw miller, or a farmer and cheese-maker. Manufacturing operations producing less than 500 dollars were not included.

Mortality Schedules list deaths occurring in the year immediately before the census was taken. If the census was taken on June 1, 1850, the Mortality Schedule will record deaths from June 1, 1849 through May 31, 1850. As with any other census record, some recording protocol was interpreted loosely by the census-taker, so deaths occurring elsewhere in the year may sometimes appear. These schedules reveal items such as age, occupation, state or country of birth, marital status, and cause of death. Given the paucity of death records for this time period, a researcher may find death details that are not to be found anywhere else.

The Social Statistics Schedules cover 1850 through 1870 and include data on wealth, debt, taxes, churches, schools, libraries, newspapers, crimes and wages. These schedules contain no personal information; they list just statistical data. They are still valuable to the researcher, however, for clues they may yield. For example, knowing there was only one school in a community in 1870 might lead a researcher to seek a record for that school, or knowing the names of community churches may be particularly helpful.

The DDD Schedules, that is, "Defective, Dependent, and Delinquent Classes," cover 1880. They archive information on "Insane Inhabitants, Idiots, Deaf-Mutes, Blind, Homeless Children, Habitants in Prison, and Paupers and Indigent Persons." Unlike the Social Statistics, the DDD Schedules list personal data, and it is often very detailed. A researcher may discover the nature of a disability or the reason for incarceration, information that may not appear elsewhere. This information may be especially important in monitoring diseases and creating family health trees.

Online censuses are the current rage in genealogical research. Between the schedules available on Ancestry Incorporated <www.ancestry.com>, those on Heritage Quest <www.HeritageQuestOnline.com>, and the every-name 1880 census index free through the Genealogical Society of Utah <www.FamilySearch.org>), genealogists now have access to all federal schedules from 1790 to 1930, with the exception of the lost 1890 enumeration. ACPL patrons can freely access both subscription databases. With comparative ease, one can enter a surname into a search template, and through these sites, unlock the door to millions of names.

The convenience of these new tools does not render microfilm search obsolete. Indeed, researchers may still want to examine microfilm to get a clearer view of some images that did not scan or print well from the digital image. The Soundex indexes for 1900 and 1910 can also help reveal misspelled surnames. (Ancestry offers a Soundex search feature for 1920 and 1930; Heritage Quest does not for 1900 or 1910.)

Both companies created their digitized censuses using National Archives microfilm. Users may not know, however, that in rare instances through camera operator error, some pages were never filmed, and these omissions have been perpetuated in the digitized versions. A local researcher in Fort Wayne recently discovered a missing page in the 1850 schedule for Allen County, Indiana. Believing the omission to be a filming error, he examined the original in Washington D.C. and found the missing page. The names recorded there have been "lost" to genealogists using the microfilm.

The destruction of the original schedules from 1900 to 1930 renders it impossible to use them when filming errors are discovered. Researchers should turn instead to the microfilmed Soundex indexes, which were created from the original schedules, not the microfilm. A lost name may well be lurking there. So for example, John Cahlan and his wife Charlotte, who were enumerated in the 1900 schedule of Lassen County, California, Enumeration District 49, page 5B, appear only in the Soundex. The census film skips from page 4B to page 6A within E.D. 49, thereby omitting their names from the Heritage Quest database.

As every genealogist knows, some families will continue to elude our best efforts to find them. But knowing that filming errors may account for some lost names offers the hope that they can be restored. Only a careful reexamination of the original schedules and Soundexes by NARS, Ancestry, and Heritage Quest staffs will ever restore these lost pages to our use, and this writer knows of no current plans to do so.

This 45-room motel has park-at-door convenience and a location near many restaurants and shopping. Rooms have microwaves, refrigerators, computer dataport telephone, free HBO and local calls. Rooms with sofas and jacuzzis available. Free continental breakfast and newspaper every day. This hotel was brought to our attention by Joe Druse, a genealogical visitor from Michigan, who said, "It is friendly and clean, and very cheap." He stays there regularly.
Best Value is near the corner of Washington Center and Lima Road, within sight of IHOP, KFC, Cracker Barrel and a Chinese restaurant. ACPL is an easy drive, about ten minutes. The rates stay at AAA and AARP levels all the time; for a king-size bed, one person, the rate is $35.95 plus tax. A real bargain.

INTRODUCTION

The Fred J. Reynolds Historical Genealogy Department of the Allen County Public Library was organized in 1961 by the library director for whom it was named. The department's renowned collection contains more than 300,000 printed volumes and nearly 320,00 items of microfilm and microfiche. This collection grows daily through department purchases and donations from appreciative genealogists and historians. Because of the collection's size and continuous growth, the information in the following holdings summary will necessarily be brief and representative in nature.

FAMILY HISTORIES

More than 50,000 volumes of compiled genealogies represent research already done on American and European families, and range from brief typescripts to well documented multi-volume works. Nearly 5000 genealogies on microfiche and numerous family newsletters complement this collection.

U. S. LOCAL RECORDS

Nearly 200,000 printed volumes are testimony to the department's efforts to comprehensively collect U.S. genealogy and local history publications. All the standard reference works are here, including The American Genealogical-Biographical Index and the National Union Catalog of Manuscript Collections. County and town histories, vital, cemetery, church, court, land, probate and naturalization records can all be accessed through department catalogs. Standard statewide references and indexes for eastern states are on the browsing shelves for patrons' convenience. Significant collections of microfilmed local records, such as the North Carolina Core Collection, are available for: CT, IL, IN, KY, MA, NY, NC, OH, PA, SC, TN, VT and WV. Smaller microfilmed collections are available for other states. Additional microtext sources which complement the outstanding print collection include the Genealogy & Local History Series on microfiche, and microfilmed county histories for CA, IL, IN, MI, NY, OH, PA and WI.

MISCELLANEOUS U.S. RECORDS

Several important manuscript collections and reprint series of regional or national scope are contained in the department's microtext holdings. These include:

Library of Congress Land Ownership Maps
Sanborn Fire Insurance Maps for Indiana
Draper Manuscript Collection & Shane Papers
Robert R. Livingston Papers (NY)
American Home Missionary Society Papers, 1816-1894
American Missionary Association Manuscripts, 1839-1882
Boston Transcript "Notes and Queries" columns
Colonial newspapers from MD, PA and VA

NATIVE AMERICAN RECORDS

Please consult the department's Bibliography of Sources for Native American Family History which details print and microtext holdings by state and by tribe. Important microtext records include:

All Indian census schedules, 1885-1944
Applications and Enrollment cards of the Five Civilized Tribes, 1896-1914
Indian Claims Commission Decisions
American Indian periodicals
Indian Pioneer History Collection and Index
Records of the Cherokee Agency in TN, 1801-35

AFRICAN-AMERICAN RECORDS

Please consult Curt Witcher's African American Genealogy: A Bibliography and Guide to Sources which details print and microtext holdings by state. Important microtext records include:

GERMANY

The print collection contains important research guides, maps, emigration records and compiled genealogies for the nobility and middle class including Deutsches Geschlecterbuch and Siebmacher's Grossem Allgemeinem Wappenbuch. An important source on microfilm is the Hamburg Direct Passenger Lists and Index 1850-1901, which often provides place of origin data for emigrants. The International Genealogical Index (I.G.I,) is the major source of German vital records held in the department, while the Family History Library Catalog will help patrons identify records available elsewhere. Consult the department's German Genealogy Pathfinder for details.

OTHER COUNTRIES

Printed sources for other countries are limited mainly to guidebooks and references on European nobility and heraldry. The I.G.I. is the department's major source of vital records for countries outside of the U.S. and Canada. Consult the Family History Library Catalog for records available elsewhere.

PERIODICALS

The department holds the largest English-language genealogy and local history periodical collection in the world with more than 5100 current subscriptions and nearly 10,000 titles. Individual articles may be accessed through a variety of indexes including the PERiodical Source Index (PERSI), compiled by department staff.

ONLINE DATABASES

Important online genealogical sources are available in the department and include the Social Security Death Index, current directory products, some marriage records, and FamilySearch system, which includes the I.G.I., Ancestral File, Pedigree Resource File, and the Family History Library Catalog.

AUDIO-CASSETTES AND VIDEOS

More than a dozen instructional videos are available for in-house patron use. More than 1400 taped lectures on genealogical research methodology delivered at national and regional conferences are available for patrons to check out.

COMPLEMENTARY COLLECTIONS AT THE ALLEN COUNTY PUBLIC LIBRARY

The Genealogy Department's holdings are enhanced by the library's other significant collections of biographical sources, government documents, legal references, Native American first hand accounts and early American travel and exploration accounts. All of these can be identified in the library's online catalog.

WHEN YOU VISIT

Being prepared and organized ahead of time makes your research trip much more productive and enjoyable. Visit the library's website for access to the online catalog and any news that may affect your research visit. Librarians experienced in genealogical research are always on duty to answer your questions. Please notify us in advance if you plan to bring a group. Open hours are:

Monday-Thursday	9 a.m. to 9 p.m.
Friday-Saturday	9 a.m. to 6 p.m.
Sunday	1 p.m. to 6 p.m.

(Closed on Sundays, Memorial Day weekend through Labor Day)

THE REYNOLDS SOCIETY

The continued growth and development of the department's collection and services will be increasingly dependent upon monetary contributions to the Historical Genealogy Department Endowment Fund as well as gifts of books and records. Individuals who give to the Historical Genealogy Department Endowment Fund become members of The Reynolds Society, in honor of the vision of the department's founder, library director Fred J. Reynolds.

Membership in The Reynolds Society provides patrons with a unique opportunity to demonstrate in a tangible way their support for the Historical Genealogy Department, ensuring its tradition of excellence for the benefit of future family historians everywhere. Please inquire for more details.

New Site Added to Department's Online Resources

Advancing technologies continue to impact how genealogists and family historians identify important information sources and conduct research.
Even a decade ago, few would have imagined that such significant quantities of data would be readily available on the Internet. The opportunities for networking and collaboration are truly remarkable. For researchers who visit the Allen County Public Library, three major subscription databases are available for use. Ancestry.com certainly represents the largest data file on the web for genealogists. This site contains many large sets of data including the U. S. census indices and images, a significant U. K. collection, historical newspapers, and the Social Security Death Index. Clicking on "list all databases" can be quite a pleasant and eye-opening experience! HeritageQuestOnline.com provides researchers with a growing collection of full-text family and local histories. More than twenty-five thousand titles are available to scan and download appropriate sections. In addition to its virtual library of genealogies and histories, HeritageQuest also provides U. S. census indices and images, and the most current version of the "Periodical Source Index." It is truly like a library within our department. In 2004, we started an institutional subscription to NewEnglandAncestors.org. This is the web site of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, the oldest genealogical society in the country. For those researching New England ancestors, this is an amazing site to explore. There are hundreds of data files organized into roughly two dozen subject categories. An overall "Master Search" is also available for searching across all their databases. It's a must-look if you are doing New England research. To these licensed data files, we have added our own affiliate website, http://www.FriendsOfAllenCounty.org, which makes available data from Fort Wayne and Allen County, Indiana, as well as from other regions, in a searchable format. At present, all the databases on the site are searchable from anywhere. Currently, the modest collection of Allen County data files includes indices to late 20th century burial permits, 20th century servicemen and servicewomen, the first fifty years of county death records, and late 19th century annual reports for the city of Fort Wayne. Look for the number of data files to steadily grow. A link will be added from our department's main web page in the near future. In the meantime, feel free to stop by "FriendsOfAllenCounty" and take a look around.

To complement our deep and rich collection of books and microtext, look for the department to sport a growing collection of searchable files.

The Inward/Outward Slave Manifests for the Port of New Orleans, Louisiana is an unassuming and informative source that may help to track movement of slaves, as well as the slave owners. The domestic slave trade transplan ted approximately one million slaves during the period of 1808 through 1865 (prior to the end of Civil War). The relocation was from Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia, Maryland, District of Columbia, and North Carolina, to Alabama, Mississippi, Western Georgia, Louisiana, Texas, and Arkansas.

In 1808 the United States abolished the importation of slaves and from that time through 1865, there was an aggressive migration and settlement of the southern frontier. Slaves were transported overland and by coastal waterways.

Coastal transportation was from as far north as Boston along the Eastern Seaboard, all the way to New Orleans. Many Africans and African Americans were sold south or transplanted south with their owners.

The manifest documentation provides the following kinds of ownership that could have existed for any one of the slaves being shipped to New Orleans:
A) Owner is a planter moving via sea his whole plantation (slave, equipment, etc.) to the Port of New Orleans. Occasionally the place of relocation is provided.
B) Owner is a slave trader who has bona fide papers showing that he is the owner and that he is consigning a lot of slaves to either his agent or his slave trading house in New Orleans
C) An agent or consignee is shipping slaves to be sold in the New Orleans market individually or as a group.
The list provides the owner/shipper name, consignee and agent, ship name, embarkation port, and of course the port of arrival.

If a slave's speech, mannerism, or description was suspect, they could be held back upon arrival for investigation, and the manifest so noted. The manifest contains the name, age, description of the slave, and sometimes a female slave will have her children's names listed with her entry. Currently we do not have a complete index for this collection, but the records are well organized by ports and dates. Though some effort is required, they can be easily searched.

This record source is greatly underutilized for both African American genealogy and slave owner migration research in the Old Southwest. We invite you to discover this source!

Atlas of Historical County Boundaries
Elaine M. Kuhn

Identifying the locations where one's ancestors resided can often prove challenging to researchers; this task becomes even more daunting when the place changes county affiliations. Further, since counties are often the entities responsible for collecting and maintaining records ranging from taxes to wills, knowing which county was responsible for an area can save much time and frustration. To aid fellow researchers in their quest for information, Editor John Long and his staff began in 1993 the multi-volume series, Atlas of Historical County Boundaries, detailing the creation and boundary changes of every county in the United States. The series finds its origins in the five-volume set, Historical Atlas and Chronology of County Boundaries, 1788-1980, also edited by John Long (ACPL call no. 973 H615), but is broader in scope and documents county formations from colonial times through 1990. Volumes covering twenty-four states and the District of Columbia are published so far (to identify which states' volumes ACPL owns, search the ACPL catalog for the words, "Atlas of Historical County Boundaries").
Each volume begins with a table of county creation dates, source citations and, where applicable, a listing of counties that had made it through the preliminary steps of creation, but for a variety of reasons never became full-fledged counties. An individual chronology of each county's evolution follows along with an illustration of the county within its state, a map of the county as it was during a specific time period superimposed onto a map of its current form, and a brief description of the event that caused the change in boundaries. Maps are based on those created by the U.S. Geological Survey, showing much more detail than what i s provided in William Thorndale's excellent Map Guide to the U.S. Federal Censuses, 1790-1920 (call no. 973.003 T39MA). Readers will also find outline maps for all of a state's censuses – be they territorial, federal, or state – and descriptions of the information available for each census. Every volume contains a bibliography of sources for further research and most of the volumes include modern-day indexes of places. Some volumes also provide a chronology and set of maps showing the state during territorial organization. Genealogists, historians, and even those with a passing interest in geography will find a wealth of information within this series of books.

And you think you love genealogy!

Working at ACPL, we get many, many visitors from all corners of the country, and even some from foreign lands. Most visit for a couple of days or a week. The lucky ones have family that live in Fort Wayne, and can then camp on the couch for an extended visit. Not many pick up and move to Fort Wayne for their love of genealogy. Well, meet Helen. Helen is a South Dakota native who has MOVED to Fort Wayne to work on her genealogy. A mother of 3 adults, she put her belongings in storage in South Dakota, found an apartment on the Internet near the library, took a bus to Fort Wayne, signed a year lease, and made a beeline for the library. "Living in South Dakota, it's hard to get genealogical materials. Of course we have the LDS Family History Center, but I had to send for everything. I talked to the kids, told them I was moving here. They were excited for me. I just love it here, all the resources right at my fingertips! I might stay another year!" She adds "The staff here is very customer service oriented. From the pages to the librarians, they are friendly, helpful and make researching a great experience" Now I call that a hardcore genealogist!

The Future of the Past . . .

A couple of weeks ago, a few more rolls of microfilm from Ingham County, Michigan crossed my desk. It reminded me again about how one society, one group of dedicated people, can have such a significant impact on preserving and making accessible local records. For a number of years, a few dedicated individuals in the Ingham County Genealogical Society have been working to straighten, flatten, clean and prepare for preservation microfilming local newspapers, court records, and other county documents. Working on this county-wide project in manageable pieces, they use the proceeds from one round of microfilm sales to fund microfilming the next township's records or the next collection of newspapers. Our own Allen County Genealogical Society has been so consequential in assisting with collecting and preserving family history. Their quarterly publication has indexed so many records and articles since its first issue was published. The society's First Families Project generates thousands of pages of narratives and documents. Their current projects include, but certainly are not limited to, indexing the burials from the Catholic Cemetery, working with the local historical society on the publication of a two volume history of the county, and assisting the Clerk of Courts with preparing historical circuit and superior court records for microfilming.
The work of these two societies provides us with excellent examples of individuals concerned about preserving yesterday's and today's records for tomorrow's researchers. Each of us should ask what we have done lately to assist in ensuring that our children's children have the records to enjoy that we have had. What are we doing to ensure our research is available for the ages? The future of the past is truly in our hands!

The Drouin Collection
John D. Beatty

The Genealogy Department is pleased to announce the acquisition of the Drouin Collection, one of the most important resources for doing genealogical research in the province of Quebec, Canada. Published and distributed by the American French Genealogical Society, the collection consists of 2,366 microfilms of original church registers and notarial documents from Quebec, some of which date from the seventeenth century.
A nearly comprehensive list of Roman Catholic, Jewish, and various Protestant congregations is presented, as well as some Indian Missions, with the records dating generally from the beginning of the congregation to the early 1940s. The collection also includes the registers of a number of French and Acadian Roman Catholic parishes in the United States, and in the provinces of Ontario, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. Because these are films of the actual records, they allow researchers to make their own interpretations of handwriting and in some instances view the actual signatures of ancestors. Thus, the microfilms represent a major primary source for researching vital records in Quebec.

The key to using the set is a multi-volume guide, the Inventory of the 2,365 Microfilms of the Drouin Collection, listing all of the congregations by town, denomination, and parish name. It includes the available dates for each and keys them to the appropriate microfilm number in the above set.

Many, but not all, of the marriages from the above microfilms are indexed by bride and groom in a separate microfiche collection known as the Men Series and the Women Series. This index consists of over 33,000 pages of French Canadian marriages from 1760 to 1935, listing the parish where the marriage is found. While it pertains primarily to Roman Catholic marriages and is not comprehensive, it is a useful place for beginning research if a family's place of origin is not known. Because no t all marriages appear in the index and many Protestant marriages are excluded, one should always check the original register on microfilm when one knows the town or parish.

The Drouin Collection enhances ACPL's already extensive research collection of Canadian genealogical materials. With its acquisition the library becomes one of only several institutions in the United States to own the complete collection.

Yizkor books available at the Allen County Public Library, Fort Wayne, Indiana. Susan D. Kaufman

Yizkor books, which memorialize both the people and communities destroyed in the Holocaust, are a poignant, strong reminders of the Shoah. Published as a tribute to ancestral homes and the people killed in Eastern and Central Europe, these books are most often in Yiddish and/or Hebrew. These are hard to find historical, sociological, and genealogical reference sources that few repositories throughout the United States have. The Genealogy Department of the Allen County Public Library is pleased to house nearly 300 of these very special and rare volumes. We are pleased to be among such major Holocaust museums and respected repositories as the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum, Washington, D.C.; the Hebrew Union College, Cincinnati, Ohio; St. Louis County Public Library, St. Louis, Missouri; and the Holocaust Memorial Center in Detroit, Michigan who also maintain these books in a special collection. In addition to the rare Yizkor books, the department offers a rich collection for the Jewish family or 20th century researcher. Supporting collections include ship passenger lists, all federal census for available years, nation wide historical city directories plus many synagogue histories, cemetery inscription books, Jewish community histories, nation wide World War I draft registration cards and published family histories all are among other deep and broad genealogical sources. To locate what towns and countries are represented in the ACPL collection one can search the on-line card catalog at http://www.acpl.lib.in.us. Clicking on the library catalog link, you will be able to search for your town of interest, checking to see if a Yizkor book is available at ACPL. Search terms might include the town in Europe (remember spelling variations) or a broad search term "Memorial Books – Holocaust."

In an exciting development, Yizkor books owned by the Allen County Public Library are now listed in the JewishGen Yizkor Database <http://www.jewishgen.org/Yizkor.database.html>. JewishGen is the leading Internet site for Jewish genealogical research for those interested in researching their Jewish history <http://www.jewishgen.org>. The database is searchable by location or keyword providing a list of the libraries that own these special books. As most of these books are written in Hebrew or Yiddish, JewishGen has made a concerted effort to translate many of these Eastern European Memorial Books and their necrologies. If a translation is available the entry in the Yizkor Database will have a link to the translation.

We are pleased to offer this special resource among the many other special resources housed here in the Genealogy Department of the Allen County Public Library.

Genealogy Gems: News from the Fort Wayne Library
No. 1, March 31, 2004

Welcome!

Only a very few short years have passed since the celebrated dawning of both this new century and this new millennium, and we have alreadyexperienced some amazing events. Indeed, these are exciting times of discovery and opportunity for those researching family and local history. Technology continues to provide opportunities to access more records, and explore new tools for valuating and conveying data found those records. Never have opportunities for collaboration and networking been greater--and never has so much information been so readily available.

Since its inception, the Historical Genealogy Department of the Allen County Public Library has been committed to serving a nation of researchers through a great collection and outstanding reference service. In the early days of this new millennium, we continue to look for innovative ways of assisting twenty-first century genealogists. The premier issue of this electronic newsletter marks the beginning of such an initiative.

Through this publication, we will inform you about both our new collections and our many lesser-known treasures; we will share information about the use of important resources and provide best research practices and methodologies; and we will provide you with news about genealogical happenings in our area. And we commit to doing it all in a short, easily-read format of an e-zine. We trust you will find it useful and share it with your family and friends.

Southern Claims Commission Disallowed Claims, 1871-1880
(National Archives Microfiche Publication M1407, RG 233)
Timothy Dougherty

Southern Claims Commission Disallowed Claims is an engaging and useful tool for American Civil War era research. This collection may help flesh out a family history. It may enable a researcher to establish connections with neighbors, relatives, ex-slaves, and ex-slave owners.
The contents may note an ancestor's occupation and standing in the community, or may help discover a missing link. And often, they provide an ancestor's first-hand account of the times. This collection is available in our Microtext area.

In 1871, Congress established a commission to receive and examine monetary claims for Civil War losses. These claims were based on the facts that the claimant had been both loyal to the Union and had supplies or stores seized by or furnished to the US Army during the war. States affected in the commission were AL, AR, FL, GA, LA, MS, NC, SC, TN, TX, VA and parts of WV. This collection includes just the claims that were wholly "disallowed" or ultimately never paid out, and claims that were "barred," that is, failed to make the March 10, 1880 deadline.

The claims contain varying degrees of information. Some have merely a card with a few hastily scrawled notes. Many others, however, include pages of documents-lists detailing the claim and depositions by both claimants and witnesses. The nature of the claims is also varied; they include property, stores and supplies-damaged houses, flatboats, potatoes, pork, crockery, and fodder, for example. The claim treats the specifics and itemizes the losses. The depositions may detail claimant's age, birthplace, specific location, and circumstances regarding the claim. They may reveal, in his or her own words, what the claimant felt and witnessed during the war. These provide a fascinating glimpse into the claimant's life and surroundings.

This collection includes a comprehensive, easy-to-use index.

These claims can be utilized with a separate National Archives publication, Records of the House of Representatives: Southern Claims Commission, 1871-1880 (P-2257). This includes the Summary Reports of the Commissioners of Claims. It is strongly recommended that the reports be checked in addition to the Disallowed Claims, as it includes material not found in the claim itself. It contains the commissioners' reasons for disallowing the claim, and may include additional personal data. Each wholly disallowed claim should have such an entry. Also included in the Summary Reports are statistical analysis, overall observations, and the "rules" concerning the claims.

British Parliamentary Papers on the Irish Famine
Steven W. Myers

Many genealogists with Irish forebears trace descent from families that lived through the Great Famine of the 1840s. Those interested in adding some historical background to their family narrative often consult a general famine history for that purpose, in spite of the fact that local conditions varied dramatically within Ireland. Few realize that a wealth of detailed information about famine era conditions is available for the precise locale in which their ancestors resided. A rich source of this detailed data is the eight volume Famine series of British Parliamentary Papers published by the Irish University Press. This series contains selected correspondence and reports of relief commissioners and local boards of health and public works attempting to respond to the crisis. Government relief measures, the state of workhouses, and famine conditions in each district of Ireland all emerge from the statistical and narrative material in these volumes. Using them will enable the family historian to reconstruct a more accurate picture of the world their ancestors left.

These contemporary famine reports are generally arranged in alphabetical order by the name of the Poor Law Union. Each union was centered on a market town, in which the union workhouse was located. The key to accessing information relevant to an ancestor's place of origin is to know the name of the poor law union in which they resided. To find the name of the union, consult the General Alphabetical Index to the Townlands and Towns, Parishes, and Baronies of Ireland [call no. 941.50003 G28A], based on the 1851 census of Ireland, and reprinted by the Genealogical Publishing Co. Once the name of the union is known, the table of contents in each volume of parliamentary papers can be consulted for relevant items. Correspondence from local officials can be graphic in its description of conditions, sometimes mentioning specific individuals and poignant episodes. In addition to statistical data, some tables provide the names, ages, relationships, and residences of individuals affected by the famine. The following brief list of examples will illustrate the possibilities: "Return of Persons receiving Out-Door Relief, as Paupers (Castlebar Union)," "Occupiers of Land within the Union of Kilrush.who are willing.to emigrate with their families to Canada," and "Female Orphans in the Donegal Union Workhouse between the Ages of 14 and 18 Years.willing to emigrate to Australia." Genealogists can readily access this valuable set on open shelves in the Genealogy Department at 941.5 P1997.

On The Road Again: The Allen County Public Library in Fort Wayne, Indiana

If you've seen a list of the top genealogical libraries in the world, you will have seen a reference to the Allen County Public Library (ACPL) in Fort Wayne, Indiana. If you're lucky enough to have visited there, you'll know why! Most lists will put it as number three, behind the LDS Family History Library in Salt Lake City and the combined resources of the National Archives/Library of Congress in Washington, DC. (Some have it number two, splitting the Federal government resources and moving them down the list.) This is pretty impressive for a public library in a city the size of Fort Wayne.

And why, you may ask, is this library so involved in genealogical research? It started with a library director who had a great interest in local history, so during the Depression he scoured the estate sales for books cheap to keep the library shelves filled. In 1961 Fred J. Reynolds, who was then the director, organized the local history collection into the Historical Genealogy Department as he saw more people becoming interested in tracing their roots.

Resources of the ACPL Collection

By the end of 1999, the collection contained over 280,000 pieces of microform (microfilm and microfiche) and over 250,000 books, including 147,000 local histories and more than 46,000 family histories. [Source: Beatty, John D. "Historical Genealogy Department of the Allen County Public Library", Celebrating the Century! 2000 ACPL Millennium Conference (Fort Wayne, Indiana: Allen County Public Library, 2000), 50-57.]

The collection's primary scope is North American, although there are some European resources, primarily British Isles. There are numerous major collections in the department, including:

- City Directories. Since 1964 the ACPL has been a designated repository for the R.L. Polk directories, which means that they have a nearly complete collection of all directories published by that company since that year. In addition they have collected as many other directories (actual books) as possible for earlier years or other publishers. There are also numerous microfiche for early directories (1785-1860).
- Periodicals. The ACPL has an enormous collection of genealogical and historical periodicals. In addition, they receive thousands of newly-published periodicals a year from around the country (and beyond), which are now being cataloged in PERSI. [See the PERSI section later in this article.]
- Local Records. There is a large collection of local records, print, microfilm and microfiche, from all over the U.S. Many WPA records have found their way to ACPL, as well as microforms of some surprising subjects. This collection should not be overlooked even for areas far from the heartland of Indiana.
- Census Records. The library has collected all federal censuses 1790-1920 (and is preparing to receive 1930), as well as statewide indexes and soundexes, mortality schedules, and a number of special census schedules (i.e., agricultural and manufacturing schedules for Indiana, Civil War Union veterans and widows schedules for 1890). There are also state censuses for a number of states (not just MidWestern states, but as far as Rhode Island and California) for various years.
- Passenger Lists. The library has most (if not all) National Archives passenger list microfilms plus numerous other references.
- Military Records. Many of the available National Archives microfilm records and other resources for the Revolutionary War, War of 1812, Indian Wars, Mexican War, Civil War (Union and Confederate), Spanish-American War, Philippine Insurrection, World War I, World War II, Korean Conflict, and Vietnam War are available.

- Native American Records. There is a growing collection of Native American holdings including Indian census schedules and other useful titles.
- African-American Records. There are Federal census slave schedules, Freedmen's Bureau records, and other tools for researchers.
- Canadian Records. A collection of Canadian records includes Passenger Lists, Ontario Birth, Marriage and Death Indices from 1869 to after 1900, and census schedules from 1666-1891.

Using the ACPL Collection

The library is located at 900 Webster Street, just a short walk from the Grand Wayne Convention Center in downtown Fort Wayne. The library web site and the Fort Wayne Tourist Bureau web site give further details on where to stay or park.

The Historical Genealogy Department is located on the second floor of the library. On entering the department, be sure to register on the computer terminal located at the entrance to the department. The instructions indicate that their ultimate objective is to allow patrons to search for others researching the same surnames; however, that functionality is not yet available.

The next stop should be at the information/reference desk to pick up maps and brochures explaining the library layout and collections. Find a spot at one of the dozens of tables in the reading room (many have electrical outlets underneath for computer users), review these materials, and organize your materials.

There are several catalogs available at the library and online. Prior to a visit, you should take advantage of the online catalog and online PERSI to prepare to be most productive. Both are available in the library if you don't have access from home. The online catalog is like other library catalogs, except that you can specify if you wish to check in all departments or just the Historical Genealogy Department for holdings.

If you have already identified resources that you wish to consult, you will first need to determine whether they are in the open or closed stacks. The open stacks are limited to a few categories of material, particularly: WPA printed resources, PERSI-indexed periodicals published by genealogical societies (not historical societies or other types of organizations), printed census indices, passenger list indices, some local Allen County references. Most other print holdings are in closed stacks and must be requested. There are small slips on the table across from the Information Desks and on top of the card catalog cabinets.

You are asked to limit your requests to 6 titles at a time; the pages, however, seem extremely efficient, and there seems to be someone delivering books every few minutes. Don't forget your seat number so they know where to deliver your requests. When you finish with a volume, it is placed on a cart, which the pages return to the stacks when they finish a round of deliveries. Note: be considerate and return volumes as soon as possible - someone else may be waiting for just that information to make a major break-through. Books on the open stacks are also returned to the carts.

On the Information Desk there is a box of copy cards, which are free (but have no copy credits). Take a card to the machine and add an appropriate amount. It is recommended that you add in small increments of $1-$2 at a time until you know exactly how much you will need. You cannot get credit for unused copies on the card. The copiers will also take change, so if you only need one more copy, it is not necessary to put another $1 on the card. Try to do your copying as you go so you don't tie up the machine or the book for hours on end - and to be sure you do not run out of time. There are several machines, but they do get a workout most days.

If you are going to work with microform material, consult the catalog in the Microtext Room (beyond the Microtext Reading Room) to get the film number. The films are grouped by type (census, military, passenger list, state records, microfiche). There are printing readers in the Microtext Index Room (the first room off the Main Reading Room), which should only be used once you have located the page you wish to copy. The films are returned to the designated pots to be refiled by library personnel.

In addition to the online, microtext, and PERSI listings, there are two card files at the library. One is a shelf-list catalog, which indexes the holdings by number, the other is the old cross-referenced card file (which was technically retired the end of 1998 - no new listings have been added, since all new acquisitions are added to the computerized catalog). The shelf-list catalog is a rough simulation of "browsing the stacks", which can be useful if you don't find exactly what you're looking for or if you have some spare time to just look around. The old card file may also be more comfortable or have a listing in a different way that helps in some cases. It should always be checked, just in case you missed something on the online catalog.

Special Services

In 1987 the Allen County Public Library began indexing the genealogical periodicals in their collection. This project was named PERSI (PERiodical Source Index), and has become an extremely valuable and popular tool for genealogists. Note that this is NOT an every-name index, so you should search by place as well as surname, and be alert for remote connections. The publication place is often not a good indication of the subject - local societies in far western states often publish articles concerning New England or Southern ancestry of their members - so don't discount the possibility of something relevant coming from a "strange place".

The first volume contained a subject index of the periodicals received in 1986. Annual updates have been published since 1987. In addition, a sixteen-volume retrospective section was published in 1995, listing periodicals published between 1847 and 1985. Both the current and retrospective updates are now continuing, as the library adds more current and older issues. The most up-to-date version of PERSI is available for purchase on CD-ROM (through Ancestry.com) or online by subscription at www.Ancestry.com . In the library, PERSI is available on the computer terminals at the library web site under Databases.

The Historical Genealogy Department staff cannot undertake research projects by telephone; however, a Research Center service is available for some information for a fee. Contact the library for further details on services and prices. A list of local researchers for hire is also maintained by the library, if you are unable to visit yourself.

For those in the Fort Wayne area, the Allen County Public Library is one of the few non-LDS facilities with Family History Library rental privileges, so any circulating FHL microforms may be rented through ACPL.

Suggestions for a Research Trip

To make the most of your available time, as with any other research trip, planning is essential. Here are a few suggestions:

- Check the Ft. Wayne Tourist Bureau web site (address below) for accomodations, events (you might want to avoid major festivals, for example), and other information.
- Make your hotel reservations early; if you are staying at a downtown hotel near the library, you are also near the Convention Center, so there could be a great demand for rooms.
- Visit the ACPL web site (address below) to search the online catalog for titles of interest. Also check any print resources available to determine holdings of interest (see the titles by Curt Witcher below). Make a list and prioritize them so you can fill out call slips immediately upon your arrival.
- If you have access to PERSI - online, in hard cover at your local library, or on microfiche at your nearby Family History Center - make a list of articles of interest. Again, prioritize them. Be sure to note the EXACT title, volume and date of the publication, as well as the title of the article. There are several titles that are very similar and this could cause confusion. Having the title of the article will help to pinpoint the exact page.
- Determine one or more research objectives for your trip. Do you want to track a family through the city directories? Do you want to find someone's immigration? Do you want to locate a marriage? List the objective and put the list of resources you plan to use with it. Have a fall-back plan if there is nothing to help with the one objective you have in mind - or if you find all your answers in the first hour.
- Double-check the library hours. Make sure that they will be open when you plan to be there.
- When you arrive at the library, check with the hotel and the library Information Desk for brochures, maps, and pamphlets (also check the rack of announcements between the Main Reading Room and the Microtext Index Room for upcoming conferences, workshops, and seminars).
- Have your supplies organized ... I always suggest a few file folders for your copies, so you can keep them separated by subject or publication. Be sure to have several pencils. Take some change for that last odd copy or two. If you need nourishment, there are several fast-food restaurants within a block or two. There is no food or drink allowed in the library. There is a water fountain near the washrooms.

- Have a great time!

Effectively Using the Periodical Source Index

Jennifer Doerflein Hines, MLS
Heritage Pathways, Inc.

The PERiodical Source Index is the best periodical index for locating genealogical and historical research articles. Learn how to effectively use this resource to find the information you need for your research.

If you have any questions about this page, using PERSI, or periodical research in general, Jennifer Doerflein Hines offers free consulting via email at jenny@heritagepathways.com.

Introduction

The July-September 1994 issue of Buried Treasures, published by the Central Florida Genealogical Society, Inc., included a letter from a Union soldier stationed in Jackson, Tennessee. The letter to his niece back home in Rock Island, Illinois, contained detailed descriptions of his war experiences and his feelings of longing to be back home with his family.

> I tell you it is no fun to have the Balls whistling and rattling around a man, when he wants to see his little ones at home as bad as I do. I had two little trials at it in one day, and if I can get through this war just as well, and not be in another I shall be satisfied...

This letter is sure to be treasured by the relatives of Lt. Col. Ezra M. Beardsley, the letter's author - if they can find it. How could anyone guess that this Illinois soldier's letter, written in Tennessee, would be published in a Florida periodical? It was there only because the soldier's great-great-grandniece happened to belong to the Florida society a century and a half later and submitted it for publication!

Until the the creation of the PERiodical Source Index (PERSI) project in 1985, no logic would help researchers find such "misfit" items - and they are many in number.

Following are some tips, in outline form, for using PERSI effectively.

I. What is the PERiodical Source Index (PERSI)?

The PERiodical Source Index (PERSI), published by the Allen County Public Library Foundation in Fort Wayne, Indiana, is an article index to more than 7,000 genealogy and local history periodical titles published in the U.S., Canada, and other countries.

A. History of PERSI
   1. Created in 1985 at the Allen County Public Library
   2. Twofold project since its inception:
      - Retrospective set - periodicals published before 1985. Four sets, so far.

- Annual index - periodicals published for the current year.
  An annual volume has been published each year since 1985.

3. Now available from Ancestry, Inc., on CD-ROM and by online subscription. This is good news for researchers because this eliminates the need to search each annual volume and four-volume retrospective set. Now all of PERSI - over one million records - can be searched by family name, record type, location, or by keyword.

B. How PERSI can help you with your research
PERSI indexes nearly all English-language and French-Canadian genealogical periodicals, as well as some major foreign genealogical journals. Here is a sampling of the variety of periodicals that are included in PERSI:

- National - The American Genealogist
- Regional - Pacific Northwest Quarterly
- State - Indiana Genealogical Society Newsletter
- Local - Allen County Lines, the Quarterly of the Allen County Genealogical Society of Indiana
- International - Le Javelier (French-Canadian), Der Kurier (German)
- Very Old - New England Historical & Genealogical Register, since 1847
- Military - Confederate Veteran
- History Only - Chicago History
- Religious - Methodist History
- Computer Interests - Genealogical Computing
- Special Groups or Ethnic - African American Family History Association Newsletter
- Professional - Association of Professional Genealogists Quarterly

C. What PERSI does not index

1. Every name in every article
2. Queries, ancestor charts, family group sheets
3. Society officers, membership lists, meeting notices
4. Book and computer software reviews
5. Surname journals and newsletters
6. Page numbers

II. Researching PERSI: Five Categories

Following are some tips for researching five categories of information that are indexed by PERSI:

A. Family surname

1. Each citation is in alphabetical order by surname of the family discussed in the article.
2. Family records include short articles on individual families, cemeteries where all people buried have the same surname, a single record about an individual or between two parties, and family Bible records.
3. Family surname journals, queries, ancestor charts, and family group sheets have been excluded.
4. Remember to try different spellings for your family surname.
5. If your own family has not been written about, published, and indexed, perhaps a related family has been. Search for related families.

B. U.S. location and record type
   1. The states are arranged alphbetically by zip code abbreviation, and within each state each county by record type
   2. Research statewide articles, not just county articles
   3. In the printed volumes of PERSI, researchers will find articles for US after TX and before UT

C. Canadian location and record type
   - Arranged first by nation, then province, then by record type

D. Other foreign location and record type
   - Arranged first by country, then by record type.

E. Methodology, or "how-to" articles
   1. Contains citations to articles that identify and explain certain record types.
   2. Most methodology articles are encoded "Other" because the study of genealogy goes well beyond the 22 record types in PERSI, other areas are:
      - Documenting your genealogy
      - Writing your family history
      - Genetics
      - Heraldry
      - Medical terms
      - Photography
      - Preservation
      - Computers

      ... just to name a few

Note that PERSI uses 22 record types for indexing location and methodology articles:

- Biography - includes names with some significant data, such as date and place
- Cemetery - lists of cemeteries
- Census - includes all local, state, and federal population schedules. Also includes statistical abstracts as well as other census schedules, such as mortality, slave, and agricultural.
- Church - includes all church records, such as marriages, baptism, burial, rosters, lists, history, ministers' diaries. Church cemeteries, however, will be listed under cemeteries.
- Court - includes all court records which cannot be placed in another category or records of a mixed nature; e.g. freemen, justices of the peace records, chancery, divorce, jury lists, name changes, legislative acts, etc.
- Deeds - includes records of deeds, deed abstracts, or indices to same
- Directories - many types of directories, such as city, county, business, and rural
- History - histories of towns, counties, states, industry, social movements, etc.
- Institutions - inclueds records of states institutions, jails, orphanages, hospitals, county homes, mental facilities, etc.
- Land - includes records concerning land and land transfer that are not deeds
- Maps - includes pictorially represented maps
- Military - includes all traditional military records such as pension, servie, muster, bounty land, regimental histories, CSA and GAR records. Includes 1840 census of pensioners and 1890 Union Army veterans census schedules as well
- Naturalizations - includes naturalizations records and indices, passports, declarations of intent, visas, and oaths of allegiance

- Obituaries - includes records that are obituaries or indices to same
- Other - a general category that includes records that do not fit any of the other classifications, and are frequently lists
- Passenger Lists - includes passenger lists or indeces to same, officers and crews, and histories of specific ships. These are indexed by location of the port of entry
- Probate - includes estate records, inventories, administrations, wills when listed with other probate records, guardianships, orphan court records, etc.
- School - includes class rosters, school census, alumni lists, teachers' diaries, payrolls, boards of education minutes, etc.
- Tax - all types of taxes and assessments at all levels of government and all geographic locations
- Vital Records - births, deaths, marriages, mortuary and funeral home records, bastardies, etc. Divorces are indexed under Court Records
- Voter - lists of voters, tabulated results of elections, slates of candidates, poll taxes, Great Registers, etc.
- Wills - wills, indices, or abstracts of the same.

III. Where to Locate a Copy of an Indexed Article

A. Allen County Public Library in Fort Wayne, Indiana

B. Other Major Research Libraries:

- Atlanta Public Library
- Cincinnati Public Library
- Dallas Public Library
- Family History Library in Salt Lake City
- Library of Congress
- Los Angeles Public Library
- New England Historic Genealogical Society
- New York Public Library
- Newberry Library in Chicago
- Wisconsin State Historical Society

C. Local Library

D. Publisher of the Periodical

The following list of finding aids may help you locate the publisher of the periodical:

- Bentley, Elizabeth Petty. The Genealogist's Address Book. Baltimore, MD: Genealogical Publishing Company, Inc.,1995. 3rd ed.
- Bentley, Elizabeth Petty. Directory of Family Associations. Baltimore, MD: Genealogical Publishing Company, Inc., 1996. 3rd ed.
- Bibliography of Genealogy and Local History Periodicals with a Union List of Major U.S. Collections. Fort Wayne, IN: Allen County Public Library Foundation, 1990.
- Carson, Dina C. Directory of Genealogical and Historical Publications in the US and Canada. Niwot, CO: Iron Gate Publishing, 1994.
- The Genealogical Helper. Nibley, UT: The Everton Publishers, 1947-.
- Meyer, Mary K. Directory of Genealogical Societies in the USA and Canada. Pasadena, MD: the compiler, 1994. 10th ed.
- A Survey of American Genealogical Periodicals and Periodicals Indexes. Detroit, MI: Gale Research Company, 1978.
- Ulrich's International Periodicals Directory, 1998. New Providence, NJ:

R.R. Bowker, 1998. 36th ed.

- Wheeler, Mary Bray, ed. Directory of Historical Organizations in the United States and Canada. Nashville, TN: American Association for State and Local History, 1990. 14th ed.

E. Through a Research Service.
If you cannot obtain a copy of the article in person, you can use a research service to photocopy the article for you for a small fee. At this time, there are two main services who will do this for you:

- Allen County Public Library.
  Follow the directions in the PERSI volumes or CD-ROM to have the ACPL research staff copy the article for you.
- Heritage Pathways.
  Fill out and submit the form available on the Heritage Pathways Web pages to have the article copied for you. Heritage Pathways donates a portion of each order to the PERSI project at ACPL.

IV. Summary: How to find an indexed article

These are the research steps needed to find an indexed article:

A. Find the index citation in PERSI. Copy the volume, number, month, year, and four-letter periodical code.
B. Find the periodical name in the appendix using the four-letter periodical code. (Note: Using the online version of PERSI makes this step unnecessary)
C. Locate a copy of the periodical.
D. Look at the periodical's table of contents page. Note that not all periodicals have such a page. Note also that a PERSI citation may differ from the actual article title.
E. Find the article. If you decide to photocopy the article, it is a good idea to copy the title page of the periodical, also.

Hello John,

Following are some suggestions as where to look for Jacob SCARBRO's death, burial or will. You can access the PERSI index at Ft. Wayne for you own list or additional ideas. Since you only have a couple of days there, your time may be better spent on something else. You can also access Ancestry.com, and other online data bases at the State Library in Indy, too.

Hello John,

Following are some suggestions as where to look for Jacob SCARBRO's death, burial or will. You can access the PERSI index at Ft. Wayne for you own list or additional ideas. Since you only have a couple of days there, your time may be better spent on something else. You can also access Ancestry.com, and other online data bases at the State Library in Indy, too.

Finding Your Way in the Book Stacks

The Historical Genealogy Department uses a modified Dewey Decimal numbering system to organize books on the shelves. Once you know its secret, finding books is easy. The Location Guide on the reverse side of this sheet gives the beginning part of the call number for general books on each state or province. Books on counties in each state have "01" added to the general state number, and then are arranged in alphabetical order by the name of the county. Books on specific cities, towns or villages in each state have "02" added to the general state number, and then are arranged in alphabetical order by the name of the specific place. Also check county books for information on specific towns. The following order is typical:

977.2	General books on Indiana
977.201 AL5	Books on Allen County, Indiana
977.201 D36	Books on DeKalb County, Indiana
977.202 Au1	Books on Auburn, Indiana
977.202 F77	Books on Fort Wayne, Indiana

You may simply browse the shelves for items on a geographic area of interest, but remember to check the online catalog for books given a call number you don't expect. Ask a librarian if you need assistance.

Garland Brook Cemetery

501 North Gladstone Ave. • 376-6375

BRIEF SUMMARY OF FLOWER AND DECORATION POLICIES

Garland Brook Cemetery is not responsible for theft or damage to any marker, monuments, flowers, decorations or ornaments caused by vandalism, accident, weather or other circumstances.

Appropriate flowers in good condition are allowed in permanent vases or urns at all times.

Check "Decoration Booklets" for information on special Holiday Decorations.

Permanent vases are made of bronze, granite, concrete or metal.

Glass, plastic or wicker flower containers are not durable enough for cemetery use.

Unused or broken urns or vases and deteriorated or out of season flowers will be removed. Shepherd-hooks of any size, style or installation method are not used.

Extra decorations are a safety hazard and hinder the crew.

Do not leave items lying on or sticking into the ground, on the marker or marker base, on the foundation or stuck into the crypt front.

This includes, but is not limited to, statues, angels, ceramics, toys, ornaments, cone shaped flower containers, styrofoam novelties, crosses and wreath stands.

DECORATION BOOKLETS ARE AVAILABLE IN THE OFFICE, THE MAUSOLEUM AND CEMETERY INFORMATION BOXES.
